

Jose Martinez-Hinestroza is a third year doctoral student in Curriculum, Instruction, and Teacher Education, in the College of Education. He got his degree as an engineer, before getting a Master's degree in education offered in his native Colombia by SUNY at Buffalo. Having worked as a teacher, and as a language center coordinator, he currently works in research related to the preparation of future teachers to work with bilingual learners, and also with mathematics teachers in bilingual elementary school classrooms.