RCAH 111 Stories

This semester, students enrolled in RCAH 111 “Writing in Transcultural Contexts” have been exploring the relationship between culture and various forms of human expression. Students will present a variety of compositions that emerge from these explorations. This celebration of student work will include a wide variety of written, visual, and multimedia projects that ask us to reflect on how we make meaning in cultural contexts.

CLAC Program

Students participating in RCAH’s Cultures and Languages across the Curriculum Program (CLAC) will showcase projects in American Sign Language, Chinese, French, Korean, Russian, and Spanish from Integrated Language Options (ILOs). Graduate Student Language Fellows will share summaries of their guest lectures in RCAH courses.

The End-of-semester Student Exhibition in the LookOut Gallery will present a collection of student work from this semester’s RCAH courses.
